Caught in the Net

A comedy by Ray Cooney

John Smith, the two-timing taxi-driver, is still living in bigamous bliss in both Streatham and Wimbledon in South London when his son by one wife and his daughter by the other find each other on the internet and are determined to meet. This is the premise of Ray Cooney's hilarious farce Caught in the Net, which Dartmouth Players Theatre will present March 30 to April 16. Caught in the Net is the fast-paced sequel to Run for your Wife which Dartmouth Players staged to the delight of our audiences in June of 1990.

Caught in the Net is sure to keep our audiences laughing as John Smith once again recruits his best friend Stanley to help prevent his teenaged children from meeting. Everything that can go wrong does in this play that London's Daily Telegraph called "Even funnier than its predecessor... It's sheer joy from beginning to end."

David Ridley returns to our stage as "John Smith" the hapless taxi-driver and Bryn Rowlands plays "Stanley Gardner", the artful lodger. Sandy Mitchell and Kerry McNeil play the two somewhat confused wives "Barbara" and "Mary" and Michael Roche plays the totally confused "Dad" (Stanley's father). We have double cast the teenagers with Kristin Slaney and Ariana Perlmutter alternately playing "Vicki" and Michael Robson and Dylan Aucoin alternately playing "Gavin". Cliff Tyner directs the production while Frances Taggart does the stage management. The production is coordinated by Sandi Montgomery. Come and enjoy the antics!

Cliff Tyner, Director

Caught in the Net runs March 30 to April 16, Wednesdays to Saturdays, 8:00 p.m., and one matinee at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday, April 10 at the Dartmouth Players Theatre, 33

President's Message

Every once in a while, the planets come into alignment and valuable things happen. Nineteen years ago the Dartmouth Players, the second resurrection, came into being. Their mandate was to provide quality community theatre at an affordable price. All the members and boards before me have, through a great deal of good management and foresight, put us in a spot where that dream has been realized. Never satisfied with the status quo; this year's board is in the process of making another leap forward.

The past few years have seen us make use of the theatre building through the Crichton Community Centre Society. This year, we are again proud to be able to add to our normal four season plays. In September, we had the World Premiere of our own Flo Trillo's award winning Mildred. We will be entering the One Act Play Festival at CBU (formerly UCCB) again this year. Another season opener is planned for September and we will be adding two productions from the Youth Theatre Program.

Education is our key. It adds energy and quality to our productions. Significant changes have happened in the educational program. Starting from adult Improv, we have extended classes to include to adult acting, lighting workshops, stage management workshops, a comprehensive Youth Performance Program and the Story Telling and Story Quest for children and teens. There are several more workshops and performances in the works but it is too soon to announce details, so please stay posted. (We have an awesome newsletter and website!)

Backstage we have, at last count, a 33 point wish list improvement program underway. Included are new sinks for the dressing rooms, carpeting in the upper halls to cut down on sound transmission, a theatre computer, a cabinet for our script library, shelving, a piano/keyboard for rehearsals and classes, and the list goes on; all to make our place easier, more convenient and more fun to work, learn and play.

We are very lucky to have the dedicated and capable board we have. They make all these things possible. I sincerely thank them, each and every one. The moon is in the second house; I consider myself very lucky to be President over this exciting time.

"What REALLY Happens Backstage? A Stage Management Workshop"

If you've ever wondered what truly goes on "behind the scenes" of a play, from auditions to closing night, this is the workshop for you. Whether you have no experience in theatre, some, or even if you think you know what stage management and play production are all about, veteran Geoff Ball will lead you out of chaos into order with his comprehensive, systematic approach to stage management.

This workshop is not only for people who wish to become Stage Managers, but equally important to producers, directors, actors, technicians, indeed to anyone with any level of experience, who wants to better understand the place of stage management in the organizational structure of community theatre. You may be quite surprised at how things should really work!

The role of Stage Manager is the most complex position in theatre. Often thankless, frequently stressful, always challenging, stage management places seemingly endless demands on an individual. Yet, if properly done, stage managing can be the most rewarding, satisfying job in theatre.

If you'd like to learn about the fascinating world of play production -- who does what, when, how and why -- then you'll definitely enjoy this workshop.

The Stage Management Workshop takes place Saturday, April 2, at the Dartmouth Players Theatre, 33 Crichton Ave., Dartmouth, from 9:30 am. until 4:30 p.m.

The morning will cover the "theoretical" aspects; the afternoon will be "practical," with each participant enjoying a "hands-on" experience stage managing an on-stage rehearsal of a talented, lively cast who will challenge everyone's new knowledge and skills!

Since this is strictly an educational, non-profit occasion, the fee, to cover expenses, is only $15 for Dartmouth Players members, $20 for non-members (which enrolls you as a member).

Because of the comprehensive nature of the workshop and the individual attention given, space is very limited. Please register early by e-mail: beachball46@hotmail.com or telephone Geoff Ball at 463-1082.

General Theatre Terms

AUDITION

Process where the director or casting director of a production asks actors / actresses / performers to show him/her what they can do. Sometimes very nerve-wracking, but auditions can be a fairly painless process if handled properly. Performers are often asked to memorize a monologue from a play they like to perform for the director. Books full of suggested monologues are available. You may be asked to do a "Cold Reading" which tests your own response to a piece of text you've not prepared.

BLOCKING

The process of arranging moves to be made by the actors during the play, recorded by stage management in the prompt script. Positions at the start of scenes are noted, as are all movements around the stage (using terms such as "Gardener X DSL" meaning the Gardener crosses to downstage left.)

BOX SET

Naturalistic setting of a complete room built from flats with only the side nearest the audience (the fourth wall) missing.

CUE

The command given to technical departments to carry out a particular operation. Normally given by stage management (i.e. Sound Cue), but may be taken directly from the action (i.e. a Visual Cue).

DOWNSTAGE

The part of the stage nearest to the audience.

FLAT

A lightweight timber frame covered with scenic canvas. Now usually covered with plywood or hardboard and consequently not so lightweight. Most theatres have a range of stock flattage made to a standard size, and re-used many times.

PROPS

(Properties) Furnishings, set dressings, and all items large and small which cannot be classified as scenery, electrics or wardrobe. Props handled by actors are known as handprops, props which are kept in an actors costume are known as personal props.

UPSTAGE

The part of the stage furthest from the audience.
